To Whom It May Concern:

As a former colleague and supervisor of Jason Pearce, I am pleased to offer some comments to help you understand how your company or organization could benefit from Jason's special talents and traits.

I have known Jason since July 1999. From November 1999 through August 2000, I supervised Jason at WeFusion.com, where he had the title of Content Architect, Post Sales Support, and Account Manager. Prior to his decision to work for WeFusion.com, the president of the company and I aggressively pursued Jason to come to work with us. We did this because of his accomplishments as Director of Communications for Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity, his reputation among his peers, and his understanding of how to use technology to communicate with large audiences. His subsequent work for the company justified our efforts to employ him.

Jason is conscientious, principled, organized, insightful, and cheerful. He is confident but not arrogant. He can keep his sight on strategic goals while staying on top of the day-to-day details. He has an aptitude for and curiosity about technology and its practical applications. He is a team player who also can work independently when required.

I urge you to give Jason Pearce your careful consideration. If you hire him, you will immediately strengthen your team and make your own life easier because of his dependability and attention to detail.

Sincerely,

Bill Martin
